

Community Liaison Unit

Do you need non-legal support? Our Community Liaison Unit is here to help you.

The Community Liaison Unit helps people in the community access the legal services provided by Legal Aid ACT, other legal services in the ACT and non-legal support services.

The Community Liaison Unit can help you by:

- Connecting you with non-legal support services
- Supporting you in dealing with the legal system
- Helping you to understand your legal rights
- Speaking to other services for you
- Working with you to make sure that you feel safe

The Community Liaison Unit consists of an:

- Aboriginal Liaison Officer;
- Cultural Liaison Officers;
- Family Violence Officer; and our
- Migration Clinic.

Migration Clinic

Legal Aid ACT operates the only FREE migration service in the ACT. Our Migration Clinic operates one day per week and is generally booked out well in advance. Migration laws are very complicated, change frequently and there are often many forms to be completed.

If you have a migration problem, it is important to get advice from a Migration Agent. If you need migration advice, call or email our Migration Clinic.
